Assessment

- Postconcussion syndrome 310.2/F07.81

26 total minutes face-to-face time with the patient; over 50% counseled regarding the patient's previous traumatic brain injury from an MVA in February when the patient fell asleep at the wheel. His insomnia has resolved. His decreased sex drive has resolved. His short-term memory is now a 90- 95% back to baseline. The patient in his last semester of college at a 4.0 GPA - which was the first time he got straight A's - which occurred after his TBI. The patient had a repeat MRI brain which we reviewed in great detail. There was no subdural fluid collection. The only abnormal finding was some minimal punctate foci of hemosiderin deposition consistent with his previous axonal injury/TBI.

The patient is planning to study for the LSAT. I highly encourage him to do this as this will serve as cognitive therapy in regards to the last 5% of his short-term memory symptoms. He is enthusiastic about this plan. No further testing or recommendations now. He will follow p.r.n.
